Dear parents,

I am writing to inform you that you have now completed the Admissions process at Ard Rí Community National School. I am delighted to welcome you to the Ard Rí Community. Some families are new to the school and others have been with us from the very start. Whatever the case, we know every child is different and we would like to assure you we are fully committed to supporting you and your child as they make this transition; whether it's from pre-school, home-life or another primary school into Ard Rí CNS.

There is not much you need to do at the minute. You can keep up to date with school life by visiting our website or following us on Twitter. We will plan a range of 'Big School' induction activities for your family including an open day, a summer camp and your first day in August and let you know more closer to the time.

If you are joining the school mid-year please keep in touch with us about your start date. We purchase school books centrally so all you need to get is a good-sized school bag, a healthy lunch box and reusable water bottle and a well-stocked pencil case. The school uniform and tracksuit can be purchased from Kidstuff in Navan town. (more info)

Core Values of Community National Schools:

In a recent community survey 97% of Ard Rí parents who responded said they felt their children are cared for in school and 98% said they felt their children are happy in school. Through our core values we work hard to create a school environment where children can develop holistically, reach their potential and thrive. I hope you will all be very happy at Ard Rí Community National School.

If you have any specific questions contact me on the details below.

Yours sincerely,

Darragh Roe
